

Robert Hall

Group 4 - Self Evaluation

My group consisted of 3 members other than myself, namely Fenil, William and Esteban. They were all vital in the creation, planning, production and presentation of the project. In the early stages of the project when we discussed structure everyone was easy going and cooperative. When I advised the group to consider the problem solution approach to our presentation, everyone was quite receptive. This made transitioning from planning to production immensely easy as there was no conflict. Deadlines for the slides were set early which allowed us to have a review and feedback session prior to the initial exhibition to the rest of the rest of the class. Our feedback session was where we pointed out potential issues and worries we had with each other's portions so that we could deliver the best possible product. All in all, this project was a great learning experience and it went smoothly with all of our group members.